Codan wins significant contract to supply a tactical communications network in Africa

Codan Communications designs and manufactures premium communications solutions, delivering its capability worldwide for government, military, defence and humanitarian customers.

The division has won a contract with an East African government department to supply a tactical communications network. The contract has a value in the order of AUD $15 million comprising a full communications platform, incorporating Codan radios and interoperability solution along with a suite of third party products. It will be delivered in the first half of FY20.

This is a significant and strategically important contract for Codan and is consistent with our strategy to grow the communications business by further penetrating global markets as a full solutions provider.
