We are thrilled to announce that Emily Sparrow has been chosen as the recipient of the University of South Australia Codan Undergraduate STEM Scholarship for Women for 2025.

This scholarship aims to recognise and encourage talented female students who have a passion for pursuing a career in STEM. As the recipient of this scholarship, Emily will receive a financial contribution to support her studies and the opportunity to undertake a paid work placement at Codan. This placement will allow her to gain valuable hands-on experience and further enhance her skills in the field.

Congratulations to Emily on this achievement – we wish her all the best in her studies and future endeavours, and we are confident that she will make a significant impact in the world of STEM.
